MET AT THE DEPOT.

The train bearing the distinguished soldier was over two hours late, and it was nearly 3 o'clock when it finally rolled up to the depot. The officers from Fort Dougias were there awaiting his coming, and to extend a welcome to their chief, under whose orders many of them fought in the battle before Santiago. There were Captains Ducat and Wygant, Lieutenant Dashiell and others from the post, while the platform was thronged with prominent citizens, eager to see the general and The train bearing the distinguished izens, eager to see the general and shake his hand.
